Police forces unite to stamp out scourge of postcode gang rivalry

BRIDGING THE DIVIDE

By Lucy Purdy

POLICE from Haringey and Enfield have joined forces in a new bid to stamp out the growing scourge of youth gangs.

Rival groups have been waging a bitter postcode battle for years, climaxing in bloody attacks on either side of the borough boundary.

Now officers on each side have drawn up the Just North scheme to tempt youngsters away from violence and channel their energies into after-school and weekend activities.

Police will work with gang members from Lower Tottenham and Upper Edmonton following a recent spate of clashes between youths brandishing knives and even guns.

Haringey borough commander, Dave Grant, said too many young people had been "needlessly and tragically" murdered as a result of becoming involved in gangs.

He said: "This scheme is part of an overall approach to provide young people in Haringey and Enfield with the opportunity to change their lives, move away from the gangs and fulfill the dreams they have for their futures. I am committed to preventing young people becoming victims of gang-related violence."

The programme will include a range of activities targeting the two deprived areas, including careers and health and safety advice, five-a-side football, martial arts and self-defence.

There will be music and songwriting workshops with the chance for participants to air their work on Choice FM, and theatre clubs and workshops designed to encourage mutual respect between the warring factions.

Just three weeks ago, two 16-year-olds, one 17-year-old, an 18-year-old and a 19-year-old were shot and another youth stabbed when two gangs of youngsters attacked each other in Cornwall Road, south Tottenham, after an argument escalated.

There have been numerous similar attacks in recent months, concentrated around "violent flashpoints" where police know tension between gangs is ever-present. A particularly turbulent area is the border between Northumberland Park ward in Haringey and Upper Edmonton.

Just North is being run by Haringey Community and Police Consultative Group and Enfield Community Police Partnership, together with the Metropolitan Police Authority which provided the £10,000 start-up funding.

Pupils from Northumberland Park School, in Haringey, and Gladys Aylward School in Enfield, have launched the scheme with a poster design competition to promote events.

Councillor Nilgun Canver, cabinet member for safer communities at Haringey Council, is backing the scheme. She said: "This is an excellent project as it deals with the issue as a whole, providing useful activities for young people while addressing anti-social and intimidating behaviour, breaking down barriers around postcodes and bringing young people from Haringey and Enfield closer together."

Mum-to-be is forced to perform sex act in violent robbery

By Lucy Purdy

A £20,000 reward is being offered to find those responsible for a gunpoint robbery in which a heavily pregnant woman was sexually assaulted.

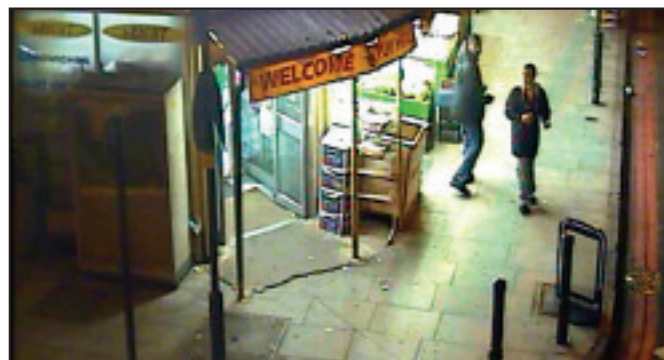

Police released CCTV images yesterday of suspects in the brutal attack, which took place in Finsbury Park on May 14 last year.

At about 10.30pm a 39-year-old man and his seven-month pregnant girlfriend were watching television at their home when three men wearing scarves and balaclavas forced their way inside.

One held what is thought to have been a sawn-off shotgun to the man's head before taking keys to the couple's grey Audi TT, a mobile phone, iPod, cash, debit cards and a laptop.

The man was hit on the head with the butt of the gun while the 33-year-old woman was taken to an upstairs bedroom and forced to perform a sex act with one of the men. The men then escaped in the couple's car, which police found two days later in Portland Road, Tottenham.

Detective Inspector Robert Pack said: "What makes this all the more shocking was that the victim was so clearly heavily pregnant. Concerns for the unborn baby can only have exacerbated what was already an emotionally and physically traumatic experience."

The first suspect, who assaulted the woman, is described as black, 6ft, stocky and aged between 18 and 25. He wore a balaclava and was dressed all in black.

The second was black or Asian, 5ft 6in tall and about 18. He wore light grey tracksuit bottoms, black trainers and a zip-up jacket with red sleeves. Suspect three, who had the gun, was black, 5ft 10in, aged 18 to 22 and wore burgundy tracksuit bottoms.

The men were caught on CCTV before the attack outside a mini-market at the corner of Seven Sisters Road and Durham Road. A third man was pictured on camera on the corner of Seven Sisters Road and Fonthill Road.

The case was also featured on the BBC's Crimewatch last night. Call police on 020 8345 3865.

Police arrest YouTube jabs

POLICE have arrested five youths in dawn raids for gun-related offences as part of a drive to smash teenage gangs taking root in the borough.

Early last Wednesday morning, two 19-year-olds were arrested in Brixton and a 21-year-old in Enfield in relation to a stabbing in Tottenham on September 11.

In simultaneous raids, a 19-year-old man from Walthamstow and a 16-year-old from Tottenham were arrested after they posted films of themselves brandishing weapons on video-sharing website YouTube.

All five have been released on bail.

Man arrested over shooting

A MAN has been arrested in connection with a shooting which rocked a Muswell Hill nightclub.

Police arrested the 21-year-old in Harvey Road, Hornsey, on September 21 on suspicion of grievous bodily harm and possessing a gun. A 27-year-old woman was shot in the hand, a 23-year-old man shot in the chest and a 28-year-old man was wounded in the neck when a gunman opened fire at The Hill nightclub on August 29. Several others were also injured in their panic to escape.

The man has been bailed until December 14.

Lord Darzi, the man behind the controversial health shake-up, opens Haringey's first polyclinic

By Kim Inam

INVESTMENT in primary care is the best way to ensure a longer life, according to the architect of London's reorganisation of GP services. After almost a decade of uncertainty over the site of the former Hornsey Community Hospital, Lord Ara Darzi officially opened Haringey's first polyclinic on Friday.

In Haringey it is being proposed that most of its 60 GP surgeries will be relocated into four hubs which house polyclinics.

Hornsey Central Neighbourhood Health Centre is an amalgamation of two GP practices, from Queenswood Practice and Crouch End Health Centre, a physiotherapy treatment unit and gym, family planning centre, and foot health clinic as well as a dementia care centre and children's speech and language therapy unit into a three-storey building in Park Road.

At the opening, Lord Darzi told the Advertiser: "The best investment you can make is in primary care services. During the past decade we have invested in hospitals, but all the evidence says you need investment in primary care services to have the biggest impact on adding years to life."

The centre, which also has two gardens for dementia patients and physiotherapy assessments, is open 12 hours a day, seven days a week. The new building cost £12million to build but Lord Darzi said investment in the future is the way for primary care trusts to keep their head above water.

He added: "You need to be much more innovative and inventive and this is the way you get through a recession – you need to invest in technology and talent. It's a recipe for disaster if we keep a service that's out of date and not patient-centred. I'm delighted there's more investment by the PCT."

The community hospital closed in 2000 after providing healthcare at the site for 90 years, despite strong opposition. And some residents have not been impressed by the choice of services available at the new neighbourhood health centre.

Sue Hessel, vulnerable groups officer for Haringey's Federation of Residents' Associations, said: "The speech therapists were delightful, but they were for children; what happens once you reach 18? You have to go across the borough to North Middlesex University Hospital,

My biggest worry is that they will overlook the vulnerable.

High hopes: Lord Ara Darzi, Ruth Carnall and Tracey Baldwin at the new polyclinic

'It's a recipe for disaster if we keep a service that's out of date, not patient-centred'

The best investment you can make is in primary care services

Testing time: Lord Darzi, above, visited Haringey on Friday to open the borough's first polyclinic which is not even in Haringey – why didn't they ensure there was speech therapy for elderly stroke victims as well?

"Also, the footcare centre said there would be no toenail cutting service for the elderly, they have to go through social services. It's not an expensive service and it helps keep people mobile and pain-free."

Mrs Hessel added: "I'm delighted we have something on the site and that staff are so pleased with it. For a lot of people who just need a quick diagnosis and prescription it will be fine; but my biggest worry is that they will overlook the vulnerable and those with chronic health difficulties."

"The health centre will focus on diagnostics, but you still need to have hospital back-up to make people well again."

S EVEN polyclinics have opened in London; a further ten polyclinics are expected to open, including one in neighbouring borough Enfield, by the end of the year. According to Ruth Carnall, chief executive of NHS London, up to 130 neighbourhood health centres are needed in the capital.

Dr David Masters reassured patients that they would still be able to see their GP. The doctor, who has been working in Crouch End for 20 years, said: "We want to keep the best of traditional services; we are hoping to work with patients we already have a long-term relationship with. But already patients are benefiting from this new centre – I have seen an elderly man who is glad to see his regular doctor for his diabetes care, but on Sunday morning there was a primary school teacher who was pleased to not have to take time out of work to see a GP."

Richard Sumray, chairman of NHS Haringey, added: "When I joined the trust I didn't think it was going to take eight years to do this – I thought we would do it in three or four. For the first few meetings the public didn't trust us and I don't blame them: a whole lot of promises had been made and we didn't deliver. The proof is what happens now and how it is developed in the future."

Tracey Baldwin, chief executive of NHS Haringey, added: "There's a whole range of services that could come here. We want to open and iron out the teething problems – we have many choices for people coming into this building. Rehabilitation in the community must be a future for all health buildings in Haringey."

Landlord's fury at eyesore sign on historic pub

By Lucy Purdy

A FURIOUS pub landlord has slammed an estate agent for nailing advertising banners to the front of his listed building without planning permission.

David Lewis, who mans the pumps at the Salisbury Pub in Grand Parade, Haringey, said a "huge" white banner put up by estate agent Paul Simon was ruining the look of the beautiful, listed building.

The company is advertising the space above the pub as commercial office space but failed to get planning permission for the sign before it was put up.

Though the banner was removed at some point last week, some 14 wooden mounts and nails remain on the front of the building. Bloggers on www.harringayonline.com have also complained about the signs, with one member describing it as "an outrage".

Mr Lewis, 44, said: "A lot of

public house

people come here to take photos of the pub. They come in wanting to look around and this damage just ruins it.

"The agents are just pushing their luck. They do what they want and sod everyone else."

He urged Haringey Council to take tougher action and fine the firm, adding: "We should be protecting buildings like this".

A spokesman for Haringey Council said: "The advertising banner is not permitted, so our enforcement team visited the owners as soon as we were informed and we understand it has now been removed."

Paul Simon declined to comment on the signs.

Fatal fire pushes urgent upgrade of riskier estates

By Lucy Purdy

A HORRIFIC fire which ripped through a London tower block earlier this year, killing six people, has laid bare the need for urgent work to prevent a similar tragedy in Haringey.

More than 400 homes in the borough, which follow a similar design, will now be subject to a £2million improvement project after inspectors at Haringey Council deemed them a fire risk. Some 378 homes in nine blocks on the Broadwater Farm Estate in Tottenham and 40 homes in two blocks on the Campsbourne Estate in Hornsey, require "urgent" work.

A three-week-old baby and two children were among those killed in July's fire in Lakanal House in Camberwell.

The blaze prompted the Department for Communities and Local Government to ask councils to investigate any flats built in the "scissor-block" construction style, leading to the action by Haringey Council.

Councillor John Bevan, cabinet member for housing, said: "We want to get on with this work urgently, starting with the staircases."

"With the knowledge we now have, it is imperative that we act to ensure our residents are as protected as they can be."

"The Lakanal fire has forced all housing providers in the UK to look at fire safety standards in light of what happened and we are determined to get this work under way with as little inconvenience to tenants as possible."

Though neither are exactly the same design as Lakanal House, and though the blocks conformed to fire regulations when they were built, the council's building control officers said the lack of protection to internal staircases on both estates could pose a fire risk.

On the Broadwater Farm Estate it was found that heat detectors need to be installed in kitchens and smoke detectors in all rooms to give the earliest possible warning of fire. Fire-resistant doors will also be fitted to bring them up to current standards.

Therapy workshop art and craft to go on show

A NEW exhibition showcasing artwork by people with psychiatric problems has been on show at Wood Green library.

Some 25 patients at St Ann's Hospital in Tottenham have showcased ceramic, textile and painted pieces of art which they have been working on during "creative therapy" sessions. The Creative Mind exhibition, which centres around the theme of unity in connection with Peace Week, is open to the public at the library in High Road until the end of today.

The hospital helps those with acute psychiatric issues, such as personality disorders, depression and schizophrenia.

Pottery teacher Sam Miller, who has been running weekly classes at the hospital for about two years and also works with inmates at Pentonville Prison, said the project had proved invaluable to some.

She said: "At the very least, it provides a welcome distraction from the distress of their symptoms and at the very best it can provide an outlet for people and help cultivate an understanding of self."

Clive, who took part in the classes, said: "It helps me to get rid of some of the long-term recollections of past frightening experiences, including the death of a friend."

Ms Miller and the hospital are trying to raise funds to buy a new kiln. Anyone able to help should email her at mushdveez@gmail.com

Flame is lit in bid to bring the Olympics to Ally Pally

Olympic hopeful:
Alexandra Palace

A CAMPAIGN has been launched to persuade organisers of the 2012 Olympics to consider Alexandra Palace as a venue for boxing, badminton and gymnastics.

Liberal Democrat councillors and Lynne Featherstone, MP for Hornsey and Wood Green, have penned letters to Olympic chief Lord Sebastian Coe, London mayor Boris Johnson and the Palace chair of trustees, asking them to consider the landmark building as a venue.

They believe it would give residents a lasting legacy from the Games and encourage more young people into sport. They spotted the opportunity after questions were raised about the suitability of venues originally planned for those events.

Councillor David Winskill said: "People in Haringey are getting little if any direct benefit from the Olympics at the moment. News that badminton, boxing and gymnastics events need a new home is a fantastic opportunity for us to be proactive and ambitious."

"Alexandra Palace is an iconic building which has a long history of holding large and important events."

"It will not be easy and some investment in the Palace would be needed to get it up to standard. But this would be a great opportunity for the borough to be put on the Olympic map and for Alexandra Palace to get some well overdue investment."

Ms Featherstone said: "People in Haringey deserve to have a slice of the Olympic action. Alexandra Palace is a fabulous venue that has a long history of hosting large events, including boxing. I really hope the London 2012 Organising Committee seriously consider Ally Pally as an Olympic venue."

Councillor Pat Egan, chairman of the Palace's board of trustees, said it would be "fitting" for it to play a part in 2012. She said: "Alexandra Palace was created in the Victorian period to celebrate achievement and provide somewhere for people to be inspired, so it fits very well with the philosophy of the Olympic Games."

Council tax defaults double

CASH-STRUCK Haringey residents are struggling to make ends meet with almost 35,000 council tax payments being missed since April.

The number of people living on the breadline appears to be rising with the number of missed payments set to double last year's. The total for the past six months compares with 32,331 payments in the whole 12 months from April 2007 and 33,704 in 2008/09.

Haringey Council issues reminder notices to people who miss a payment but the message to those in financial straits is "get in touch – not in debt".

A leaflet and lamp-post banner campaign has been launched by the council's benefits and taxation service, urging residents to contact them as soon as they have financial difficulty.

The leaflets and posters offer advice and highlight how important it is that people do not ignore council tax bills. So far this year, seven per cent of council tax owed in Haringey is still uncollected.

Councillor Bob Harris, cabinet member for resources, said: "It is really important that anyone struggling to pay their council tax makes sure they get the correct support. Ignoring the problem could lead you into debt and make it even harder to keep up with repayments. This leaflet carries practical advice for anyone who is concerned about council tax payments. We are here to help."

The leaflet is available from customer service offices, libraries, leisure centres and the Citizens Advice Bureau offices, in Tottenham Town Hall, Town Hall Approach Road, and in Willoughby Road, Turnpike Lane, or by visiting www.haringey.gov.uk

WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN SPECSAVERS' HEARING AIDS AND OUR MAIN COMPETITORS'?

ACCORDING TO RESEARCH ANYTHING UP TO £2,600

At Specsavers, we know that most people who suffer from hearing loss do so in both ears. We also know that wearing one hearing aid when two are required could still leave you with problems, but some companies charge so much that buying two is prohibitively expensive.

We've changed all that, with two hearing aids for the price of one.

That means we offer outstanding value for money. Independent research shows that Hidden Hearing charges on average £3,869 and Amplifon on average £2,528 for two hearing aids, which would cost just £1,195 for comparable products at Specsavers.

You'll also benefit from professional advice from a Hearing Aid Audiologist, the latest digital technology, free fitting and aftercare, and 2 years' warranty.

17 crack dens are closed down as police clamp down on drugs trade

SPECIALIST drugs officers in Haringey have closed down 17 crack houses in recent months as they try to smash the ruthless armed gangs at the forefront of the borough's drugs trade.

Police from Haringey's drugs focus unit have carried out 100 drug-related search warrants in the past four months in response to residents' concerns about Class A drug-use and anti-social behaviour.

The team found five loaded guns, ammunition and "a large amount" of crack cocaine and have charged and remanded in custody four people for firearm and drug offences.

Detective Sergeant Jason Turkington, of Haringey's drugs focus unit, believes the work has saved lives in Haringey.

He said: "We will continue to prioritise any intelligence linked to criminals who are involved in any form of gang-related drug activity in an attempt to bring them to justice. We continue to appeal to the community to pass on any information regarding drugs."

Call 0300 123 1212 with information.

Bus tour drives home messages of support for domestic victims

On board: Tessa Newton, manager of Haringey Victim Support, Councillor Nilgun Canver and Eve Featherstone, Haringey's principal equalities and diversity officer

By Lucy Purdy

MORE than 6,000 people have been encouraged to drive out domestic violence as they met staff during an annual bus tour of the borough.

Residents were given advice on how to spot the signs of domestic violence and on how sufferers can receive help and support during the open-top bus tour of Crouch End, Wood Green and Tottenham last Tuesday.

Staff chatted with residents and handed out advice leaflets and free gifts and said they were pleased with the level of interest during the Drive Out Domestic Violence-themed day.

Councillor Nilgun Canver, cabinet member for safer communities at Haringey Council, said:

"The tour was a huge success and proved to be an excellent way of reaching all the communities of Haringey. We were joined on the bus this year by many voluntary helpers and partners in the fight to halt domestic violence."

"Every year on the tour we get more residents approaching us for information and advice and it reminds us that there is still a lot more to be done to make domestic violence history."

Anyone suffering because of domestic violence should contact Featherstone, Haringey's domestic violence support centre, where they can get help from the police and victim support officers as well as learn about issues to do with health, housing and the law.

Contact Featherstone on 020 8888 5362.

Laughs lying low

The Invention Of Lying (12A)

Directors: Ricky Gervais and Matthew Robinson
Starring: Ricky Gervais, Jennifer Garner, Jonah Hill

RICKY Gervais has done it again with another sardonic slice of scintillating satire that proves his small screen success can transform just as easily to the big. Good old Ricky. I'm lying. And, just like Mark Bellison realises in his parallel universe, lying can be so much more fun. Truth is this is a high-concept, poorly executed movie in which Ricky Gervais plays himself again, or rather, a half-awake version of himself on Mogador.

It starts off well. Bellison lives in a world where no one can tell lies. They don't even know what a lie is. Cue funny date with gorgeous Anna (Jennifer Garner) who meets him at the door with the cringe inducing, "I was just masturbating", to which he replies, "That makes me think of your vagina... I feel awkward now being early", followed by her, "I really don't find you attractive."

It's made worse by the waiter at their table commenting, "She's way out of your league" before Bellison pops into see mum at the nursing home or A Sad Place For Homeless Old People and work at a film company that makes dull, factual documentaries because, of course, no one can make up stories. You get the picture.

You also get the picture that there will be lots of jokes made at the expense of Gervais being a short, fat man.

Keenly we wait for Bellison's eureka moment and, when he does start fibbing, it's quite funny... but only quite.

The problem with these one-trick movies is, unless the trick is milked for all it's worth in the most inventive, hilarious of ways possible – see Groundhog Day, The Truman Show etc – we haven't got a lot to fall back on – certainly not Gervais who seems weirdly disconnected, as if he realised someone better suited should be playing this role, leaving him to focus on the co-writing, directing and sweet talking all those new A-listers friends of his into brief cameos – always a bad sign that the star doesn't have confidence in his material.

Jamie Foxx plays Nathaniel Ayers, a brilliant, homeless musician made famous through a series of columns by LA journalist Steve Lopez (Robert Downey Jr). Not as sentimental as it could have been it's still a by-numbers buddy movie enlivened by Joe Wright's invigorating style.

Sam Mendes' sharp departure from his usual fare of American dream gone awry. He brings us a tender and funny story of a couple who embark on a journey across North America in a search for a place to bring up their baby.

Crazy, exhilarating story, to be Frank

THE MONOTONY of going back and forth to Jackson's Lane will be varied somewhat next week thanks to Frank Wurzinger.

The eccentric German comedian has devised a show, about routine, which he hopes will be as inspiring as leaving his job in market research.

"There are lots of out-of-work actors out there doing temp jobs and getting caught up in the dull routine of them all," he said. "I'm a creative person and while doing market research I got very frustrated and thought up this play."

The result is a mad fusion of visual humour, magic, puppetry and slapstick called Hopefool concerning an unnamed character who works in a confetti factory.

"He's going out of his mind," said Frank, laughing. "He's been making confetti every day for a year and he dreams of having a wife, children and being famous as an artist. It's my first solo show so I've got no one to bounce ideas off and nowhere to hide!"

Inspired by films such as Charlie Chaplin's classic Modern Times Hopefool features little dialogue but plenty of visual thrills for all the family.

"I still don't know how it's going to end," revealed Frank. "He'll either escape the factory or end up staying there. You'll have to come and see to find out."

● Hopefool takes place at Jackson's Lane in Archway Road, Highgate next Wednesday and Thursday at 8pm. Tickets £8. For more details and reservations call the box office on 020 8341 4421.

Restaurant set to be a showstopper

Restaurant News

Millfield Dining, Millfield Arts Centre, Silver Street, Edmonton
020 8807 6680

NO longer will a packet of pork scratchings suffice. No longer will an ice-cream at the interval stand in for your evening meal.

One of the great benefits of the Millfield's facelift is the addition of Millfield Dining – a funky new restaurant and bar for food pre- and post-performance.

Complementing the retro style furniture will be a menu featuring a few 1970s favourites to commemorate the 30 years since the Millfield opened.

"So there's the classic prawn cocktail and a nice pate," said food and beverage manager, Jason Hammon. "While for dessert you might find Black Forest gâteau and banana split. What we will be offering is a classic menu with lots of favourites like pie and mash and fish and chips with mains coming in at around the £8 mark."

Called to the bar: Jason Hammon in the new food and drink area

Open every evening the a la carte menu will be served up alongside a variety of snacks including: paninis, jacket potatoes, burgers and basket foods.

"We will start off just opening in the evening," said Jason. "But when the panto season arrives, and there are shows in the day, we will start serving food and drink in the daytime as well."

Look out for themed food relating to the shows (although, with his mixed parentage, chefs missed a trick by not including deep-fried tortilla on the menu for Michael Portillo's show!) and a good range of drinks to help the evening go with a swing.

Properties Urgently Needed In Your Area

The current economic crisis in USA and Europe has seriously affected among other businesses, Estate Agencies in the UK and London specifically. However, business from our side is booming and our agency has the ability to let a property within three to four days.

We have proved through our long history that we are exceptionally efficient and effective, and we employ qualified staff in providing full management, excellent customer care service, on time rent payments to landlords and more than anything else honest in business and in character too.

For your information Varosi Lettings has won many tendering agreements with local councils including Haringey, Islington, Barnet, Enfield, Hackney, Redbridge and Waltham Forest. Needless to point out that hundreds of Lettings Agencies apply for contracts with the local councils but only a small number are qualified. In a recent tender competition with Redbridge and Waltham Forest, we are proud to say that our agency was ranked the THIRD BEST AGENCY.

Unlike your local agencies that charge you between 10% and 15% for managing your property and additional 6% to 10% for finding you tenants we offer to you our special scheme where you pay NOTHING for finding tenants and NOTHING for managing the property for you. We can assure you that there are no hidden charges.

Indeed this is a special offer under our 0% COMMISSION RATE scheme. The landlord doesn't pay any commission for letting the property or indeed for its management. Please contact me on 020 7263 8100 for more details.

ROBBIE IS KEANE FOUR MORE

By Lee Husson

FOUR-GOAL hero Robbie Keane hailed the influence of manager Harry Redknapp on rejuvenated Tottenham Hotspur as the free-scoring side put five past hapless Burnley at White Hart Lane on Saturday.

Keane, who was handed a surprise spot in the starting line-up – considering Peter Crouch's mid-week Carling Cup hat-trick at Preston – made the most of his boss' faith by grabbing all but one of his side's goals.

And the Ireland skipper was quick to praise Redknapp for Spurs' revival, and a far cry from the debacle under Juande Ramos last season.

"The manager has been fantastic to all of us," Keane said.

"He speaks perfect English which helps. I'm not talking about anyone before but he gets his point across and you know exactly what he means. The players respond to that.

"He knows how to manage players. Over the years he's known to do that, and he's certainly been doing that since he's been here. He has been brilliant so far for Tottenham."

Keane tucked home his first from the penalty spot after strike partner Jermain Defoe was tripped clumsily by Andre Bikey, but Burnley were unfortunate not to equalise when Steven Fletcher fired past Carlo Cudicini, only for the assistant referee to raise his flag, with replays showing that the Burnley frontman was clearly onside.

But it was one-way traffic from that point as Jermaine Jenas fired home from outside the box, before Keane found the top corner after a neat move in the second half.

The striker rifled a left-foot shot into the bottom corner after latching on to Tom Huddlestone's fine lofted pass soon after, before squeezing a shot beyond keeper Brian Jensen for his fourth of the afternoon.

"I've never had more problems picking a team," Redknapp admitted afterwards.

"Leaving Crouch out wasn't easy but I went with the two little ones [Keane and Defoe], and their movement was fantastic.

"I thought they would give them more problems than with a big man up front, and that was a key factor."

Spurs will welcome Everton to White Hart Lane in the last 16 of the Carling Cup on Tuesday October 27.
